

Vermont's Reputation at Stake

(Enosburg Standard)

In the present Senatorial contest Vermont's reputation is at stake, the reputation she has borne during the past half century at least for the wise selection she has made in her representatives in the upper house of Congress.

Mere mention of the names of Morrill and Collamer from the east side and of Edmunds, Proctor and Foote from the west side recalls the fact that real worth and conspicuous service to the state, rather than wealth, have been recognized as the essential pre-requisite in bestowing this honor upon the sons of Vermont.

None of these men secured their election to this high office by the use of money or because of the possession of great wealth. One has to go back to the time when the millionaire Addicks was carrying on his money campaign for the position of Senator in the state of Delaware to find a parallel for the present Fletcher campaign in Vermont.

Were it not for his money Allen M. Fletcher would not be thought of for a moment for United States Senator. An Indiana millionaire, with an office in Wall Street and no interest in Vermont save that of an office seeker and holder, Mr. Fletcher presents no claims other than those attached to the possession of a fat pocket-book for the consideration of Vermont voters.

He has never been identified with anything connected with the upbuilding of Vermont, and during the years that he has persistently sought and held office in the state, there is to be found nothing of a constructive character, nothing but what stamps him as a stand-patter and side-stepper, and alien to Vermont life, ideals and traditions.

Two years ago when Senator Dillingham's return to the Senate was contested, the contestant, Mr. Prouty, was a man whose claim to recognition was based upon a career of great and notable service to the nation and who measured up in every way to Vermont ideals and traditions. In that, as in all preceding Senatorial campaigns, money or the power of wealth had no part in the contest or in determining the result thereof. It has remained for Millionaire Fletcher to project this element into Vermont Senatorial contests, and with that alone as the basis for any claim to consideration by Vermont voters.

Delaware, to her everlasting credit, rejected Addicks and his money bags. Will Vermont be true to her past and maintain her unsullied reputation, by rejecting Millionaire Fletcher?

ATTENTION TO WORK HORSES

Poor Teeth Will Cause Indigestion, and Ill-Fitting Collars Produce Shoulder Galls.

The teeth and the shoulders of the work horses have to be watched. If the teeth aren't in good shape the food won't be chewed properly. This will result in indigestion, and the animal will soon be in poor condition. Filling away the sharp corners of the teeth will many times correct the trouble.

Ill-fitting and sweat-covered collars will cause shoulder galls. A collar should fit snug against the shoulder, with room enough at the bottom to insert the open hand. Many persons use two sets of collars when the spring work first opens. One set is larger than the other, and is used before the horses have been worked down any; the other after the surplus fat has been worked off and the horses' necks are in working condition. This lessens shoulder trouble.

To treat shoulder galls use a salve made of zinc oxide. It should be applied at night or when the horses are not being worked.

HOW MILK IS PASTEURIZED

Bottle or Mason Jar is Set on Inverted Pan and Placed in Bottom of Kettle or Pail.

Milk can be pasteurized at home in bottles or in mason jars, says Farm and Home. The bottle or mason jar is set on an inverted perforated piepan, placed in the bottom of a kettle or pail. This holds the milk container away from direct contact with the bottom of the kettle and avoids danger of breakage. A dairy thermometer is essential to success.

The vessel is filled with water up to the neck of the bottle or nearly to the top of the jar or other milk receptacle and the water heated to 150 degrees. The heat is then discontinued. Cover the kettle with a cloth to retain the heat as much as possible and let it stand for half an hour.

At ordinary kitchen temperatures the water will not lose more than five degrees of heat in half an hour. At the end of this time cool the milk rapidly, seal the receptacles if the product is to be kept very long and you may feel reasonably sure of a safe food.

WHY CHILDREN HATE MUSIC

Too Often They Are Taught With Little Regard to Capacity of Their Understanding.

Why do children hate music? asked an English contemporary some time ago, and then proceeded to answer its own propounded question by saying, according to the Musical Leader, that:

"The truth is that children are too often the helpless victims of incompetent or ill-trained teachers, whose chief idea seems to be to stuff their luckless pupils with such knowledge as they themselves possess, forgetting that the child is, in this respect, but a baby, who needs foods specially adapted to its digestive powers. Consequently indigestion follows and the child's musical health suffers."

"We believe that nearly all children enjoy music. It is natural to them to love singing, and it is through singing that their musical sense should be developed."

But not through such singing as we noted some three of four years ago in some of the public schools. As the English writer says:

"If children 'hate music,' it is because they are so often taught unpsychologically and with so little regard to the intellect."

These same children from the public schools who were singing driving piffle parrot wise are the young people of today who should be attending our great concerts given by the orchestras and choral societies, and yet how many can be seen at classical concerts and fine recitals? Here is a question for the head of the public school music system. "Tis about time music for children got out of a rut.

Both Were Trying.

"Well, well," exclaimed the millionaire, "what do you want this morning?"

"I've come again to ask you for your daughter."

"Haven't I told you six times over, on as many different days, that it is out of the question?"

"If I seem to be more persistent than circumstances warrant, you, sir, are to blame."

"I," shouted the indignant man. "There," said the man who loved his daughter, as he pointed to a motto over the banker's desk, "is my excuse for coming day after day, 'If at first you don't succeed, try, try, try again.' Do you not believe in that sentiment?"

After he had scratched his head a while, the mean plutocrat said:

"Yes, I believe in that. I haven't succeeded yet in making you understand that my daughter shall not become the wife of a fool, but I am going to keep on trying till I do. Good morning!"

WHOLE COW'S MILK IS BEST

Calves Raised on Skim Milk Are Usually Runt, Pot-Bellied and Suffer Indigestion.

Calves raised on skim milk are usually runt, pot-bellied, and suffer indigestion. Whole cow's milk is a perfect feed for the calf, but skim milk is not. When the fat is removed a substitute is sometimes made by adding a handful of flaxseed meal or cornmeal, but this sort of fat is not a full substitute for butterfat.

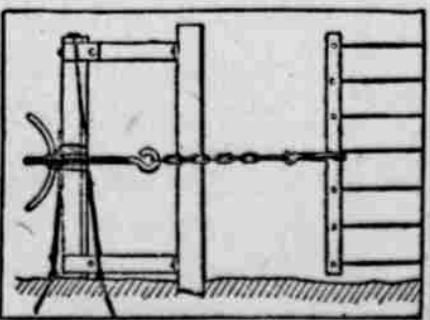

It is still a debatable question whether it pays in the long run to rob the future cow by stinting the calf for the sake of immediate profits. The practice of taking the calf immediately away from the cow is the usual thing in the dairies and, assuming that it is an economical thing to do, the question is how to feed calves on artificial food and keep them growing properly.

During the first few weeks the calf is not capable of digesting normally any food save whole cow's milk. If he must subsist on skim milk, a little flaxseed meal or cornmeal had better be added to the ration. The milk should always be given warm and never when it is frothy. Calves should never be given enough skim milk to entirely satisfy their hunger. If indigestion develops they should be kept on short rations for a day or two. If scours develop a little formalin added to the milk, combined with a restricted diet, will usually control it within a few days.

ELECTING A PRESIDENT

Van Buren, Democrat, the Victor in 1836.

AGAIN the Democratic candidate was chosen by a convention, but no platform was adopted this year. The National Republican or Whig party had three candidates. The election was on Nov. 8, and the vote, counted Feb. 8, 1837, was: Martin Van Buren of New York, 170; William H. Harrison of Ohio, 73; Hugh L. White of Tennessee, 26; Daniel Webster of Massachusetts, 14; Willie P. Mangum of North Carolina, 11. Richard M. Johnson of Kentucky was chosen vice president. Popular vote: Van Buren, 761,549; Harrison, 736,656.

In the election of 1840 William H. Harrison, a Whig, defeated Van Buren. John Tyler of Virginia was chosen vice president. In 1844 James K. Polk, Democrat, of Tennessee, defeated Henry Clay, Whig. George M. Dallas of Pennsylvania was chosen vice president.
